

International Food & Agribusiness

'When I was exploring universities for myself, finding a programme that offered a balance between theoretical knowledge and practical experiences was crucial.'

Sayonika (from India) - Student International Food & Agribusiness

HAS IT ALL

In short

Are you curious about where your food comes from, and how the system can be improved? This programme covers the whole food chain, from agriculture and supply chains, to marketing, sustainability, and international trade. You will learn to design better systems, and build business models that deliver results. By working on projects with real companies and alongside students from around the world, you will create meaningful impact. Along the way, you will develop your own perspective, uncover your strengths, and decide where you want to contribute.

- + Study in a close-knit, international classroom with loads of personal support.
- + Work on real-life projects in circular economy, systems thinking, and business innovation.
- + Start building your global agri-food network from day one.
